PRESENTATION

Maryvonne BEBOT and her husband, Francis, operate the Château Gelineau estate, which was established by her great-great-grandfather in the 1850s. As the 5th generation of winemakers, this former pharmacy assistant decided to change her life and took over the family property of 12 hectares in 1992. Prior to that, she had been assisting her father since 1988, who taught her the trade.

TERROIR

Clay-limestone soils are particularly well-suited to highlight the qualities of a red wine. They facilitate the storage of micro-elements, revealing the delicacy and finesse of the wine. The vineyard benefits from an optimal microclimate that allows for an ideal concentration of sugar and aromas within the berries. The combination of these factors gives the wine aging potential while preserving the integrity of fruity aromas.

WINEMAKING

During winemaking, every effort is made to prioritize elegance, avoid excessive tannin extraction, and highlight the natural expression of the terroir.

Aging is carried out over a period of 12 months to achieve smooth tannins and a round, velvety texture, while also allowing the terroir to regain its presence and express itself in the wine.
